NCAS TASSEL SCHEME NEWS

DECEMBER 2016

Frozen – by Barbara Williams

Southampton's Winter Clout – first week in December- is the last Clout tournament in the calendar. With limited daylight hours, this clout has to knock-off early, progress swiftly, yet still allow time for lunch and short defrosting periods. As one teenager remarked as her parent reached out with a shaking hand for her coffee – “oh look, mum’s gone to Iceland”!

Archers were so lucky. The day was one of those ones you pray for in winter – a hard frost accompanied by that crystal-clear blue sky and where the sun still had some warmth. The judges hauled themselves out of the comfort of the pavilion, walked to the line and muttered (as judges do – seems to be compulsory) about how the archers had set up in their central surveillance position. A little later they admitted those archers had done them a favour as their seats would no longer have been in the sun.

“Base Camp” looked like something out of Game of Thrones with the Wildlings gathering at the foot of The Wall. Archers wore enough padding to turn themselves into giants, some of those hand-warmers looked like dragons and a couple of woolly mammoths were shooting longbows – but that said - they always dress like that. Yet there’s always one; sub-zero and there’s a bloke walking around in shorts. He said wasn’t cold but had some spectacular goose-pimples, not that I look too closely at men’s legs these days . . .

The medal ceremony was held outside in the dying light – though luckily with the equally dying wind it didn’t feel at all bad with a nice hot brew in one’s hand. Needless to say, the club did a roaring trade on hot drinks and excellent lunches!

Winners – all of us. Great opportunity to spend an all-too-rare-day of late autumn making the most of the fresh air. This fully paid up member sub-species of homo –hibernatus now can’t wait for the new season to open with Bramcote in February. I shoot well in the rain (waterproofs mean I can’t hear anyone saying my bum looks big these trousers) I shoot better in the wind (still can’t hear any rude comments) and the cold never bothered me anyway (Let it go, Let it GO . . .)

Reminder

The National Clout Championships – 21st October 2017 – Get it in your diary!

Did you know?

The only way you can obtain a “missed” Tassel badge is either by shooting a different bow discipline or a longer distance.

Need a Classification badge?

They can be bought from me for £4.00 each or if ordering 10 or more, £3.00 each.

More Clouts needed

The calendar is still missing Tassel shoots in Scotland, Wales & Northern Ireland. Do you attend any? If yes get the organiser to contact me.

Any news?

Send it to me for the next edition.

Archer profile – Mick White

To be honest, I never knew archery clubs existed until my daughter Chloe decided to take up the sport. Five years ago when attending her local college, she saw a flyer on a notice board offering free have a go archery lessons at a newly formed club; Goldcrest Archers. One thing led to another, and after ferrying her back and forth to practice and various competitions along with Peter Gregory constantly asking me to try the sport, I finally took the leap and had took a beginners course. I enjoyed it so much that I decided to take up the sport in August 2013.

After becoming a member of Goldcrest, I started to shoot the discipline of recurve in any spare time that I had, and like most novice archers I started to come on in leaps and bounds. Several months later I bought my very own bow as I felt the time was right. This inspired me to start shooting target outdoors at the club, though I felt uneasy at first as you feel like you're being watched by the other more advanced archers, as opposed to being indoors with a much smaller number of people. Though I was quickly made to feel welcome!

As the weeks went on I then hit the dreaded wall and started to get a bit disillusioned with my shooting and form. I don't usually ask many people for help, but I decided to ask our coach, Peter Gregory, for some help and advice. Peter spent some time watching me shoot and instantly could see where I was going wrong, explaining what I needed to change. Almost immediately my shooting improved - my advice to any archer is always ask your coach or a more advanced member for some advice. Though I do still occasionally hit the wall, I always get over it with the support of the club and its members!

My first dabble with clout was back in 2013 at the Rochdale charity clout. I made my own sight (Blue Peter style) with a suspended ceiling wire looped onto my long rod. I wasn't doing very well and I struggled to make the distance. Once the grand totals were announced I found out I scored around 74 on a (metric), but not wanting to give up I entered the 2013 National Clout Championships.

This time I was "slightly more prepared", and I made my sight from some large pieces of plastic and a threaded bar. However, what I didn't take into account was the effect the wind would have on such a large sight... Needless to say I scored 49 points (imperial) and came 21st out of 22 archers. I persevered and made yet another sight, which was a little bit more technical, but after that things started to come together quickly. I became the Northern Counties 2014 clout recurve champion, and have now won it 3 years in a row along with many other clout competitions around the country. The one thing that eludes me is the National clout championship title. This year I came 2nd, losing by 1 point (ouch), and 2nd in the National clout rankings, but I am really proud of my achievements so far.

I was very fortunate to have joined a club that already had a good pedigree of clout archers, including Peter Gregory and Tracy Cross, who gave great tips and advice. So if anyone is thinking of whether to take up clout, I can tell you now that it is very addictive and equally as challenging. Each archer can chose what they want to get out of clout, whether that's being a part of it for the social side or wanting to improve your performance; the choice is yours. The last thing I wanted to say (if I haven't yet convinced you to take up clout...) is that all of the fun had when camping, and shooting with great people from all over the country, altogether it really makes for something special to look forward to.

X MARKS THE SPOT - Mr Clout (the one and only Mr Gregory!)

Another first took place at the Tri Clout weekend, August bank holiday at Neston, not only did we hold the very first record status and tassel shoot run by traffic lights but a trial run was held using an X as part of the scoring.

I thought I'd trail this as an experiment to help decide a tie, with the ever increasing skills amongst our clout archers and increasing scores, sooner or later the score for a WA/Metric clout will be near maximum on a regular basis, the score sheets included an X this was made clear at assembly that it still counts as a five (not a 10 or a 6 ha ha). This also meant that a sixth colour sergeant was needed, there is plenty of room to fit two people within a 1.5 meter zone, everyone I spoke to on the day agreed that it was a great idea and we should run this way in the future.

I have emailed Archery GB to inform them of my idea and told them I would be trailing it and asked them for some feedback but like with most things regarding clout it's always watch this space and don't hold your breath

So can I please ask tournament organisers to continue with the X's and get this established, if you want a copy of a score sheet please feel free to use the one on Goldcrest Archers Website.

Clout safety distances – Field layout – “Editors personal view”

As you will all be aware there has been much communication/discussion regarding the safety zone required for Clout shooting. It appears the Judges have been given a directive to abide by the 75 yards all-round the clout flag. We all know that whilst this is written in the clout rules it is expressed with an element of uncertainty. It is written as “deemed reasonable”. It is known that many clout fields in the Country do not have the luxury of these safety distances but have all held very successful shoots with no incident.

I am aware there is activity within the Judges/Rules Committees looking at suggestions/proposals put to them and at the present time nothing has been heard. I feel we must continue to push for clarification of this for clout nationwide to ensure that we achieve a sensible safety zone that all can work to, to ensure clout continues to grow. I would ask that archers discuss this between themselves and then write to the Judges/Rules Archery GB committees with their thoughts and suggestions.

Colour Blindness by Peter Gregory

As a clout tournament organiser for the last 11 years lots of changes have happened but one that has made me sit up and listen is the one that causes a lot of upset and frustration, Colour blindness.

Image driving 100 miles to a clout venue that you may not have shot at before and told which target (clout flag) you are shooting on, only to freeze with anxiety that your flag is the only one not there, reason being you can't see it as it's one of the colours you struggle to identify.

These colours are seen differently through the eyes of colour blind people, due to the different types of colour blindness, colours just seem to blend in with the grass or they just simply disappear depending on weather conditions, so I asked the question at several shoots this year which colour stands out more than others, by placing several different colours on poles at 180yds away I asked the archers to choose the colours that they prefer.

I now have several new colours in my kit bag as a precaution and back up for any future event, so for those who suffer from this frustrating hiccup we can help. So can I ask all clout organisers to bare this in mind and please try and add some more colours for the flags, maybe you could ask the question of colour blindness on your entry forms

P.S. please do not make your flags two tone as this can result in only seeing half the flag. Please see below the arrangement of colours I now carry.

CLOUT CLASSIFICATIONS - DON'T FORGET TO RE-CLAIM

I have noticed a drop in the claims made. I believe archers are content with having achieved the standard in past years and don't think it necessary to make a re-claim for the current season. Why not? It's only like target classifications! Do you not want other archers to see you have attained the standard again? As an indicator of numbers please see the aside table that shows 2016, 2015 and 2014 numbers in brackets.

Also, to clarify, Junior archers only have the Master Bowman classification, they do not have the Grand Master Bowman classification, unless of course they attain the scores at the senior distances!

	Ladies	Gents
Master Bowman	Recurve x 2 (2)(4)	Recurve x 0 (3) (3)
	Compound x 2 (1) (1)	Compound x 3 (3) (1)
	Longbow x 3 (3) (2)	Longbow x 1 (2) (3)
	Barebow x 2 (2) (3)	Barebow x 5 (0) (2)
Grand Master Bowman	Recurve x 0 (0) (1)	Recurve x 1 (1) (1)
	Barebow x 2 (1) (3)	Barebow x1 (0) (0)
	Longbow x 2 (0) (0)	Longbow x 1 (1)(0)
Junior Master Bowman	Recurve x 0 (0) (1)
	Barebow x 0 (2) (2)	Barebow x 0 (0) (2)

Editor Plea:

Please let me have some articles to publish, whether these be reports from shoots or general discussion documents. I would like to share more news and not just award achievers.
